

Taking the Higher, More Rational Road in Divorce Law

Joseph Law Group PC

The experienced team members of Joseph Law Group PC take a refreshingly different approach to matrimonial and family law. They're poised and proactive. Thoughtful and thorough. Straightforward and sincere. They care about their clients—and their clients' children—and genuinely desire to help them make smart, rational decisions to achieve the most optimal long-term results.

They recognize that the significant emotional trauma often experienced by divorcing parties can compromise an individual's ability to make rational decisions. Anger, hurt, and betrayal are just some of the emotions that may stand in the way of a healthy and effective resolution. Joseph Law Group is empathetic to its clients while remaining calm and sensible, which allows the team to stay focused on the goal: obtaining an equitable resolution for clients without inflicting unnecessary financial and emotional damage on the family.

"We frequently represent clients of significant financial means and often need to engage in complex litigation, but it should rarely, if ever, be an all-out war," says James Joseph, Managing Partner. "We tell clients, 'The more you engage in the emotional battle, the greater the costs to you and your family, both financially and emotionally.'"

Values for Success

Joseph Law Group is guided by its core values: integrity, professionalism, and teamwork. By prioritizing organization, efficiency, teamwork, and strategic planning, the firm maximizes the results for its clients.

"What does it mean to be a great divorce lawyer? It's not just being able to effectively represent the client at trial but to resolve a case efficiently in a manner that best serves the client's interests," says Joseph. "Our belief is that too many cases go to trial because the lawyer didn't prepare enough early on."

When lawyers are too busy to return calls and conduct discovery in a timely manner, he explains, the case drags on and emotions are stoked in the process. Recognizing this, the firm accepts a limited number of matters at any given time.

"A great divorce lawyer is an advocate who can both skillfully try a case and, more often, achieve great results while avoiding costly, damaging, and risky trials by moving a case quickly and strategically to resolution," says Joseph.

Joseph takes great pride in the professionalism and commitment to clients shared by each and every employee of the firm: "Preparation is the key to our success, and our staff and attorneys are the most dedicated I know."

In addition to litigation, Joseph Law Group also offers mediation and collaborative divorce law, a method in which the parties—not a court—control the process and the outcome.

"We try to bring perspective to our clients' situations and help them minimize the damage while obtaining the best possible results," says Joseph. "Divorce is extremely hard, but we're going to help them get through it and come out in a better place."
